To See Tukaram, Shakespeare Came Over

by Vinda karandikar

To See Tukaram, Shakespeare Came Over;
the meeting took place, in the shop.

Both met each other, in a deep embrace,
passing everything, from bosom to bosom.

Tuka said, "O Will, your work is great;
the whole of earthly life, you have depicted."

Shakespeare said, "No, that is left out;
that which you saw, on the brick!"

Tuka said, "O my boy, it's good, you left that out;
that has cracked, my family life.
Vitthal is subtle; his ways are inscrutable;
my slate remains blank, in spite of writing!"

Shakespeare said, "Why!, Because of your words,
that 'Inexpressible' itself, played in the soil "

Tuka said, "My friend, in vain is all word-play.
Everyone has to go, his separate way.
On different ways, there are different thorns;
but along with the thorns, one meets Him again.
...Now, listen, listen, there tolls the temple bell;
the shrew at home : is waiting..."

Both went their ways, in different directions;
The sky couldn't check, its wonder!
